

1. EXAMPLE OF RENEWAL SYSTEM IN SINGAPORE

1.1. OUTLINE OF RENEWAL SYSTEM

There are two types of renewal systems in Singapore. One is the system conducted by the public sector, and the other system is conducted by the private sector. These systems have the following characteristics respectively.

1.1.1. Renewal Project conducted by Public Sector

The renewal system conducted by the public sector is implemented according to the following process:

- 1) The authority (Urban Renewal Authority, URA; described later), the governmental organization responsible for the implementation of urban renewal, undertakes clearing the project site after acquisition of land, compensation and provision of resettlement;
- 2) Part of the land cleared is used as a site for resettlement building which URA will construct and manage in the future. The building is used for resettlement of residents and/or entrepreneurs of surrounding renewal projects;
- 3) The remaining cleared site is sold in an open tender involving the private sector. When tendering, URA sets conditions for the building use and size in accordance with the real estate demand in the surrounding area.

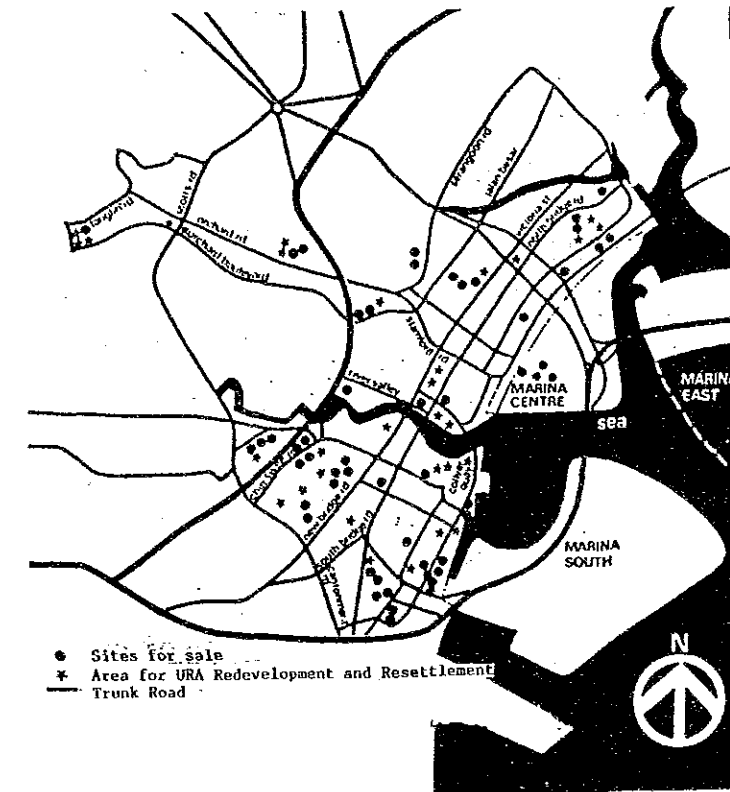

1.1.2. Renewal Project conducted by Private Sector

In area designated for renewal to be conducted by the private sector, the authority will cooperate with private sector in accomplishing a renewal project concerning compensation to residents and entrepreneurs, in order that building and/or land owners may be encouraged to execute a renewal project by themselves. The authority named the tenant compensation bureau and acting under the special law on restriction of assets determines the time of dislocation (eviction) and amount of compensation according to the request of executing body.

This system has been added to the former system for districts of the center area, however it does not proceed smoothly because of the high compensation rate to tenants and small right status of land and building.

1.2. ACHIEVEMENT OF PROJECT

The map shows the area for which URA implemented redevelopment scheme and is executing it.

Central Area Map showing URA Redevelopment Projects completed and under construction

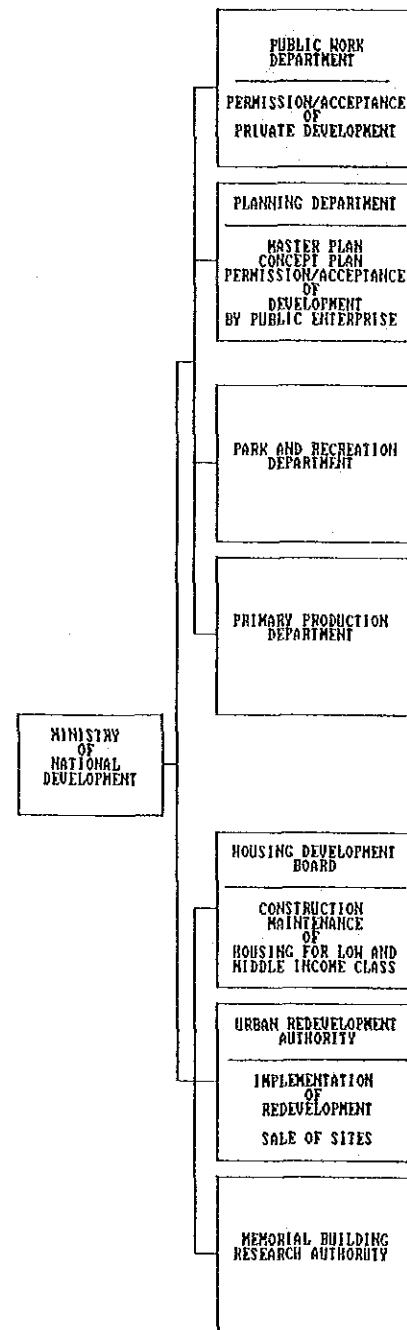

Number of Projects	86 sites
URA Renewal	32 sites
Sale of Sites	54 sites

1.3. ROLES OF PUBLIC SECTOR AND PRIVATE SECTOR

1.3.1. Roles of Public Sector

1) Organization

The following authorities falling under the jurisdiction of the Minister of National Development are involved in redevelopment projects:

2) Roles of Public Sector

The roles of public sector are:

- to prepare a plan orienting urban characteristics,
- to permit and select private sector oriented project,
- to collect development defrayment for restoration of development benefit arising from alteration of land use and floor area ratio to the public.

3) Function of Planning Department

The Planning Department has the following three functions:

- (1) Jurisdiction of the Planning Act (fundamental law of urban planning)
- (2) Preparation of the following development plan:
  - Master Plan; short term, legislative basis;
  - Concept Plan; long term, guidance basis.
- (3) Adjustment of urban development project implemented by public sector.

4) Function of Public Work Department

This authority has the following three functions:

- (1) Construction, maintenance of public facilities such as road, bridge and airport;
- (2) Planning, supervision of construction and maintenance of public building such as school, hospital and others; finally
- (3) Permission of private development and imposition of development defrayment.

5) Function of Housing Development Bureau (HDB)

HDB is the biggest governmental enterprise. HDB has the following functions:

- (1) Supply of rental housing for low and middle income class;
- (2) Sale of houses; and
- (3) Preferential reception of residents and entrepreneurs resulting in renewal project.

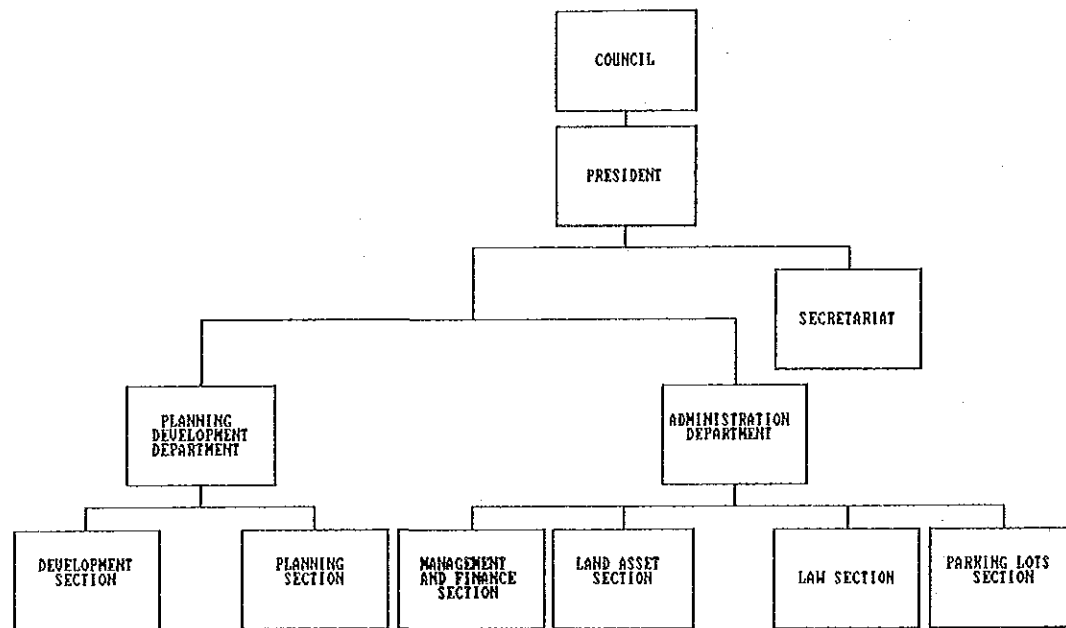

6) Roles and Function of the Urban Redevelopment Authority (URA)

(1) Extent of Tasks

- Preparation of land use plan for redevelopment in which private sector is able to participate, land reclamation, and implementation of sales of these sites;
- Construction of redevelopment building for resettlement of residents and entrepreneurs;
- Implementation of dislocation of residents and entrepreneurs and clearance of redevelopment site;

- Preparation of conservation plan and restoration plan;
- Preparation of improvement plan for Singapore river;
- Implementation of foot path and pedestrian way project;
- Preparation of integrated location plan for new commercial facilities;
- Preparation of the mass rapid transportation plan and development plan of the surrounding station; finally
- Preparation of housing distribution plan in the central district.

(2) Organization

(3) Budget

The composition of budget is as follows:

- Revenue
  - . Sales of reserved land and assets
  - . Contract remuneration
  - . Parking charge
  - . Rent, defrayment
- Expenditure
  - . Land acquisition cost, compensation
  - . Construction cost for redevelopment building

1.3.2. Roles of Private Sector

The redevelopment project in Singapore is a joint project executed by the both public and private sectors. Even though the public sector conducts the redevelopment project, the participation of the private sector is essential. It is noted that the key element in the redevelopment projects that have been successfully implemented so far, has been the system incorporating sales of sites.

1.3.3. Outline of the System; "Sale of Sites"

- 1) This systems calls for the URA to sell reserved land to the private sector by means of tender after acquisition of project site, removal of residents and entrepreneurs, demolition of buildings in the project site and finally provision of infrastructure on the basis of a detailed plan prepared by URA.
- 2) Tender documents
The following explanation and instructions to tenderers are issued by URA, when implementing the tender for the sales of reserved sites.

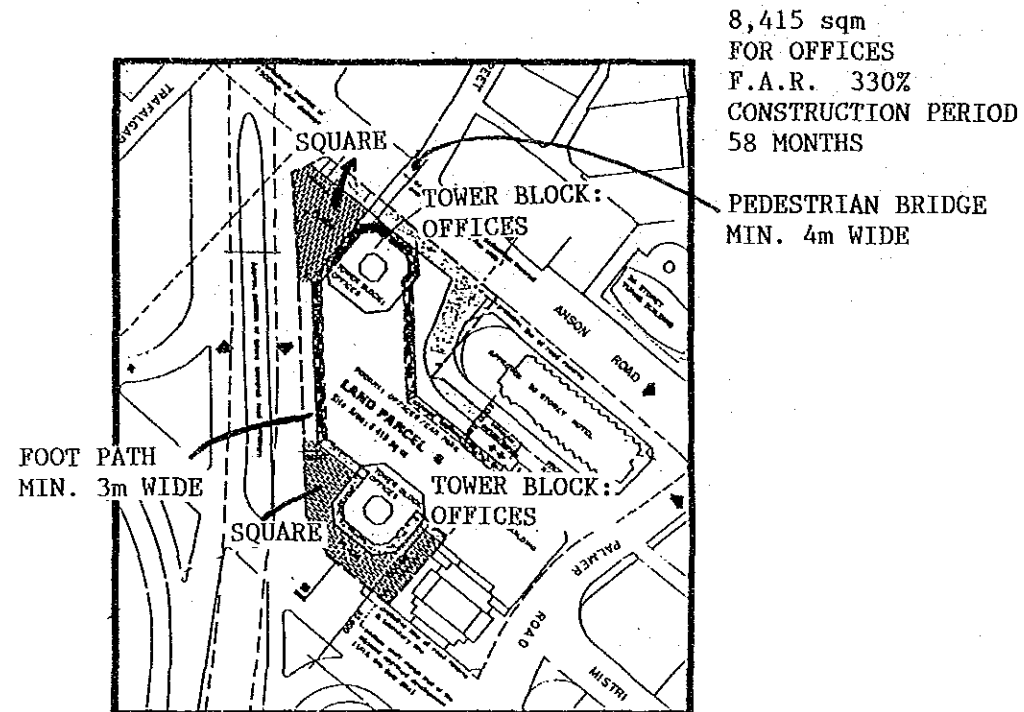

(1) Explanation of Site

- Name of site
- Land use
- Floor area ratio
- Site area
- Duration of right holding
- Duration of construction
- Landlord and seller

(2) Project Conditions (Physical Planning)

- Storey
- Facade
- Public facilities

The following drawing shows an example of the planning conditions attached in the tender documents.

1.5.2. Master Plan and Concept Plan

The master plan and concept plan as physical plans stipulate and describe the following:

- 1) Master Plan
  - Zoning
  - Population density and floor area ratio
  - Location of reserved land for school, open space, public facilities and other important utilities.
- 2) Concept Plan
  - Framework of long term urban development

1.5.3. Land Acquisition by the fixed land price

The land price was fixed to enable URA to acquire land designated for redevelopment at the rate in the year of 1974 in accordance with the Land Acquisition Act enacted in 1970. URA can get a certain margin between the acquired price and the reasonable market price (sales price) by implementing this system.

1.6. COUNTERMEASURES TO RIGHT HOLDERS

1.6.1. To entrepreneurs

- 1) Indemnity
- 2) Compensation of removal
- 3) Reduction of rent for 5 years

1.6.2. To residents

- 1) Preferential treatment in obtaining HDB housing
- 2) Reduction of rent for 3 years.

1.5. LEGISLATIVE SYSTEM SUPPORTING REDEVELOPMENT

1.5.1. Planning Act

The planning Act is composed of the following four chapters:

- Chapter 1; Definition of Glossary
- Chapter 2; Master Plan
- Chapter 3; Urban (Housing) Development
- Chapter 4; Development Charge

2. EXAMPLE OF RENEWAL SYSTEM IN THAILAND

2.1. OUTLINE OF RENEWAL SYSTEM "LAND SHARING"

2.1.1. Background

In Bangkok, the capital of Thailand, eviction threats were largely the consequence of increasing development pressure over the past decade. The building boom created large demands for land, particularly in central locations. Areas under threat of eviction were conditional to various development. Many communities faced eviction. Communities that organized to prevent eviction and stay where they were, usually succeeded in halting eviction for long periods. However, there was no positive approach which would lead to the permanent resolution of eviction threats as long as development pressure remained strong.

In attempting to establish land rights in slums and squatter areas, the government usually finds itself in the position of arbitrator to settle the conflicting claims of landlords on the one hand and squatters on the other. The general claims of landlords, whether private or public, is that the government must protect their legal rights to the land and assist them in clearing the slums so that they can exercise their right to use the land as they see fit. The position of the squatter is that they have established a claim to the land through extended stay, that they have no place to go without losing their means of survival, that the law is inequitable if so many people have to suffer so that so few may benefit, and that the government has a social responsibility to house them appropriately.

Thus governments often find themselves stalemated, not being able to support fully either the claims of landlords or those of the squatters. Landlords cannot proceed with their development plans, and squatters cannot invest in improving their houses while the threat of eviction continues to hang over them.

Land sharing -the division of the land into two sections, one for use by the landlord and one for use by the present occupants of the site- can be a practical resolution of these conflicting claims. It becomes a realistic compromise between landlords and squatters when the intentions of landlords to repossess the land become clear to the residents, and when the residents decide to resist their eviction.

2.1.2. System

The realistic compromise between landlords and squatters is a system of the land sharing renewal method. However, statutes are necessary to manage this system. The following five principles lie at the core of all land sharing schemes attempted in Thailand:

- 1) Community Organization: Negotiations for land sharing require the squatters to mobilize to counter the threat of eviction, to enlist the support of outside organizations, and to create the local leadership necessary to represent the community in negotiations. Community participation is also required in planning for the site reconstruction, in the allocation of plots, in the demolition of existing structures, and sometimes in rebuilding the houses.
- 2) A Land Sharing Agreement: This requires a binding agreement to partition the land. Usually the land parcel with the best development potential is allocated to the landlord. Other parts are allocated to the existing residents for rehousing themselves. Such an agreement must guarantee secure land tenure on the parcels allocated to the residents, and may specify the necessary payments and time schedule for implementation.
- 3) Densification: Rehousing the existing community on a smaller site requires increased residential densities. If the original density in the slum was already high, the new density will be even higher, unless some of the residents are excluded by the new scheme.
- 4) Reconstruction: The increase in residential density and the need to clear part of the site usually necessitates the reconstruction of houses, unless original densities are low enough to permit filling-in of vacant plots on the site. Rebuilding may require new forms of construction, using more permanent or more solid materials, to achieve the required densities and to upgrade the quality of houses.
- 5) Capital Investment: Reconstruction requires capital from the domestic savings of the residents or loans from outside sources. To be economically feasible, land sharing schemes cannot rely on massive subsidies and must arrange for housing within the peoples' ability to pay. This may occasionally require cross-subsidies within the land sharing scheme, utilizing some of the development gains partially to offset housing reconstruction cost.

2.2. CONDITIONS FOR REALIZATION OF SYSTEM

2.2.1. Indigenous Characteristics

Land sharing as a solution arrived at through compromise and negotiation is particularly appealing to the Thais. The open-endedness involved in the outcome, the possibility of gaining advantage and securing a better deal, and the emergence of an outcome satisfactory to all is built into the cultural and political history of the country. There is a strong orientation in Thai culture to avoid open conflict, to settle arguments peacefully, to appeal to higher authority when adversaries cannot reach agreement, and to secure solutions that are evolutionary in nature and do not fundamentally upset the status quo. This tendency to pacify and to deal gently with conflict works to the advantage of slum communities when they oppose the rich and powerful and call for a more humanitarian and civilized treatment by the authorities.

2.2.2. Eleven hypotheses

Eleven hypotheses were formulated, each relating the possibility of land sharing to a particular variable. Land sharing is increasingly viable when:

- 1) The lower the development pressure;
- 2) The better the cooperation of the landlord;
- 3) The more legitimate is the occupation of the land by the slum dwellers;
- 4) The earlier the stage in the eviction process;
- 5) The stronger the community leadership;
- 6) The stronger the support from outside organizations;
- 7) The lower the existing residential density;
- 8) The smaller the existing size of houses;
- 9) The lower the value of existing houses;
- 10) The higher the ability to pay for housing; and
- 11) The better the access to sources of housing finance.

2.4. ROLES AND FUNCTIONS OF PARTIES CONCERNED

2.4.1. Roles and Functions of Public Sector

- 1) The National Housing Authority
The land sharing renewal system, as it is, is a housing supply project. The renewal system has no legislative assurance. Agreement and negotiation between landlords, whether private or public, and squatters form the extent of the system. Therefore, the National Housing Authority plays an important role as an arbitrator. The other roles of this authority are as follows:

- The arbitration of conflict between landlords and squatters;
- The signatory of land sharing agreement; and
- The management of buildings remaining in the site.

- 2) CEBEMO in the Netherlands administered through the Credit Union League of Thailand;

- The long term housing loan.

2.4.2. Roles and function of Private Sector

- 1) Professional community organizers help the community organization to negotiate with landlord.
- 2) The community committee formed by squatters manages the construction of housing.
- 3) The community committee organizes a credit union to obtain a long term housing loan.

2.5. LEGISLATIVE SYSTEM SUPPORTING LAND SHARING

All land-sharing projects which have been implemented largely ignoring municipal regulations. They were supported in this action by the National Housing Authority and especially by the military, which insisted on quick execution of projects and the removal of bureaucratic snags. Adherence to municipal regulations in the future would limit land-sharing projects, particularly those with substantial components of self-help and self-financing. In the absence of subsidies and cross-subsidies, housing units meeting municipal standards are unlikely to be affordable by the residents of most of the slums in the city.

2.6. EXAMPLE OF PROJECT IMPLEMENTED

2.6.1. The RAMA IV Land Sharing Project

The land sharing option was first used in the case of the Rama IV slum, a large and established slum community situated on Crown Property Bureau land. After a fire in 1966 demolished a significant number of houses, the Bureau transferred the site to the Bangkok Metropolitan Administration for clearance and redevelopment, although many houses still had official lease agreements. The site was then transferred to a land developer.

Beginning in 1980 the community committee, supported by professional community organizers, submitted various proposals to share the land. The support given to the community by many authorities and voluntarily resulted in a land sharing agreement being signed in 1981.

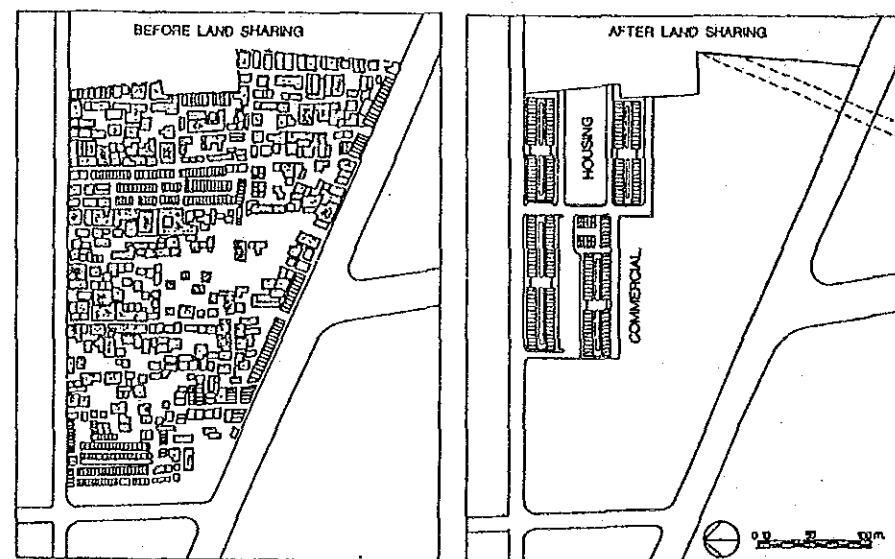

The agreement stipulated that the company would finance and build a total of 850 flats for the residents on a 2.4 hectare part of the site.

The company agreed to pay for the construction of the buildings as well as for the service infrastructure, cross-subsidizing the construction by building a large commercial complex on the remainder of the site.

The National Housing Authority is also a signatory to the agreement.

Residents will be given 20 years leases to their flats, all of which are considerably bigger than their present houses.

Construction of the first apartment block was due to begin in July 1986, but has now been postponed because of financial difficulties encountered by the company.

2.6.2. The KLONG TOEY Land Sharing Project

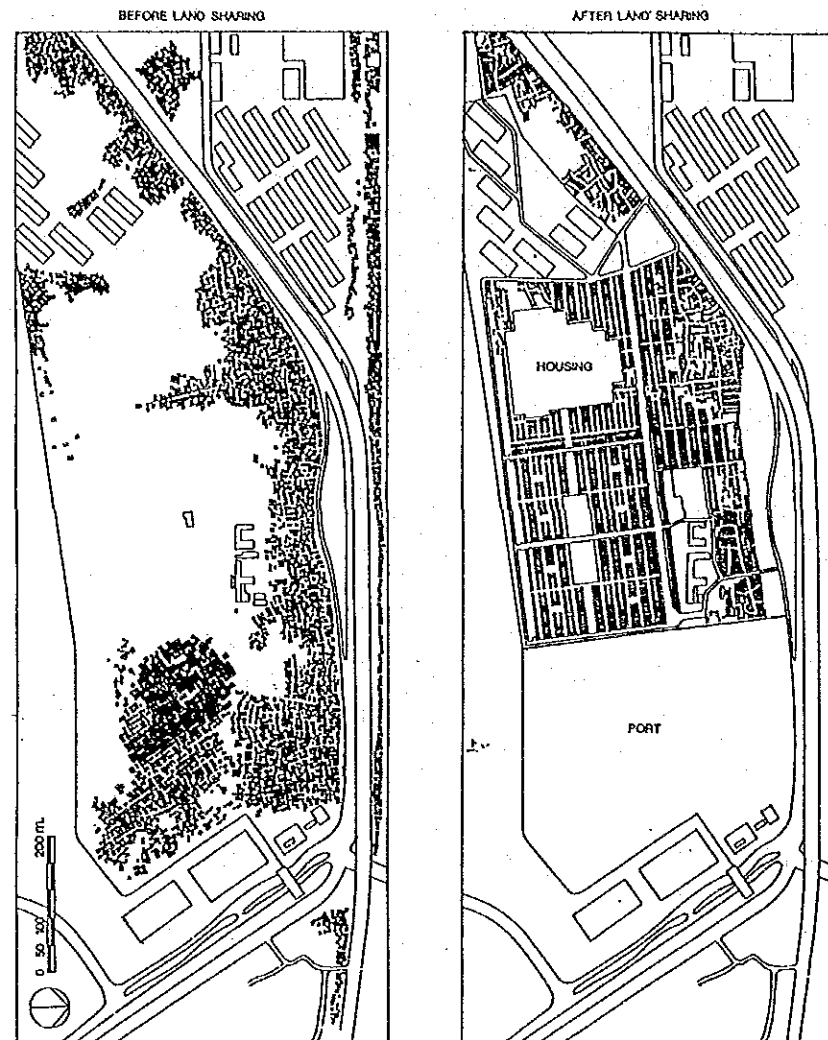

The Klong Toey land sharing project was much more successful. Klong Toey is by far the largest slum in Bangkok, as well as its largest squatter settlement, housing a total of 6000 families on land belonging to the Port Authority of Thailand (PAT). Being a squatter settlement with no land rental arrangements, tenure security is low, resulting in an equally low quality of houses and infrastructure. As a result, the Klong Toey slum has attracted many poor families who cannot afford the rent in other, better established and more secure slums in the city.

The first squatters in Klong Toey settled in the marshy area in 1939. The community started to organize in 1973, after several voluntary agencies entered the area. Strong organizations were built in the community to counter the eviction threat by the PAT which had plans to utilize the area for port expansion.

In 1983, PAT renewed its attempts to evict squatters. The National Housing Authority intervened to propose a land sharing plan.

The final agreement called for the preparation of 60 square meters serviced sites to be leased to the residents for 20 years for a nominal fee. The site was ready by mid 1985 and families started to move in and to rebuild their houses. Many families took advantage of a saving scheme for building materials initiated by the Human Development Center, a voluntary organization working in the area.

Most of the houses were built through self-help, and occasionally with the assistance of skilled workers.
