

PART SIX

Stability in South Eastern Europe

6.1 Background

The war following the disintegration of the ex-Yugoslav Federation was the first at European soil since the end of World War II. The EU was far from insensitive to the tragedy unfolding on its doorstep, and acted immediately. European solidarity in the form of a humanitarian operation on an unprecedented scale never ceased throughout the war.

Once the peace accords have been signed the European Union has committed itself to an ambitious reconstruction programme for Bosnia-Herzegovina donating immediately 1 billion euros.

Aid was in the framework of the EU Regional Approach. Since the signing of the Dayton/Paris peace agreement, the European Union has been in the forefront of helping Bosnia- Herzegovina along the road to peace, democracy and viable market economy.

Throughout the crisis in Kosovo the European Union has been in the front line to ease the plight of refugees and displaced persons through humanitarian aid.

Responding to the urgent need for special measures to tackle the huge job of post war reconstruction in Kosovo, the EU has adopted a draft regulation establishing an Agency for this job.

6.2 Description of EU Operations in the Area

Review of EC assistance to Bosnia-Herzegovina

Since 1996, substantial funding has been allocated to Bosnia- Herzegovina through the PHARE and OBNOVA Programmes.

Over the period 1996-1998, 623 million euros have been allocated to BIH through those programmes covering emergency interventions for the first year.

The Essential Aid Programme, focussing primarily on essential imports provided assistance crucial to getting reconstruction underway. Eventually, the EU refocused the Essential Aid Programme in project oriented activities and in addition to procurement activities, the Phare and Obnova programmes funded a range of reconstruction and technical assistance projects in the area of basic infrastructure, housing, institution building, economic regeneration and civil society development in particular through a 'Europe for Serajevo Programme'.

A transition took place next year as EU assistance moved away from addressing only emergency needs and towards a more systematic approach to rebuilding key sectors in B-H, fundamental to overall revival of the economy.

The principles of conditionality was also strictly applied in implementing its assistance.

The EC programmes funded major projects in transport, water and waste management, housing, energy and agriculture. At the same time, significant funding was provided to institutions in support of Dayton implementation, such as the Office of the High Representative, the International Police Task Force.

In spite of important assistance programmes, the slow return of refugees and displaced persons continues to hamper the realisation of sustainable peace.

To this respect the conclusions of the Peace Implementation Council in Madrid 15-16 December 1998 stressed in particular that the 1999 and 2000 are vital in strengthening the peace process and building democratic and market oriented institutions.

It is a move from the reconstruction phase to a stabilisation and consolidation one. The 1999 Phare and Obnova Programmes should be seen in the context of a multi-annual approach, on the basis of a new regulation.

The PHARE and OBNOVA Programmes for 1999

The main objectives of the EU assistance schemes in the short and medium term are to help:

- ✓ consolidate the peace process and foster inter-entity co-operation
- ✓ consolidate ethnic reconciliation and return of refugees and displaced persons to their homes of origin
- ✓ establish functioning institutions and a viable democracy
- ✓ lay the foundations for sustainable economic recovery and growth

On the basis of the above objectives and guiding principles, the following priority sectors are proposed for funding in 1999:

- ✓ Democratisation and Institution building
- ✓ Sustainable Economic development
- ✓ Integrated assistance activities for refugee return
- ✓ Civil society and Social development

EU aid to Bosnia –Herzegovina is given in the form of grants with no obligation other than the political commitment of the beneficiary. That means the EU has to monitor every stage of the aid implementation very closely and involves long drawn out procedures; In doing that the EU is bound to apply the principle of political conditionality very strictly.

The International Management Group, which was created with the support of the EU, offers considerable operational support in co-ordinating, supervising and assessing the reconstruction projects, where it attaches particular importance to the long term financial feasibility of the projects.

This Group supplies essential information to donors and is a driving force behind various task forces established for each sector.

Relevant local authorities are represented in these task forces.

Humanitarian Aid

During the war, ECHO (the European Community Humanitarian Office) was the only source of Community aid to the Former Yugoslavia. Since 1992, ECHO has channelled billions to the countries of the Former Yugoslavia, of which the largest part went to Bosnia-Herzegovina and recently to Kosovo.

6.2.1 Phare Democracy Programme

Assistance is also provided under the Phare Democracy Programme (B7-700)

6.2.2 Review EC Assistance in Kosovo

The European Union is taking the lead role in the reconstruction of Kosovo, a particular responsibility in supporting the road to peace and stability in the Balkans; In this context, the EU has installed a Task Force in Pristina which is responsible for organising, assessing and initiating the EU's assistance for reconstruction. This task force will be succeeded by an Agency for reconstruction.

A draft regulation for the establishment of this Agency is pending.

The EU's Task Force for Reconstruction of Kosovo (TAFKO) is responsible for the programming and implementation of the European Union's reconstruction Programme

PHARE and OBNOVA (see page 45) in 1999.

The EU has also launched in the middle of summer a Small-scale Operations Programme- a fund of 1 Å million, which will help local community initiatives in Kosovo with grants of up to 50,000 Å. Aimed primarily at Kosovar NGOs, public services, media, cultural and sporting groups, the programme is designed to support the strengthening of democratic values and structures.

A decision has been reached by the EU in approving a maximum amount of 6 million euro to be charged to line B7-546 of the 1999 Budget to support transport and local administration in Kosovo.

This programme will be monitored and supervised by the EU on the basis of regular reports, and sign contracts with independent consultants to follow the progress of the programme and carry out ex-post evaluations. The EU proposes new funding for reconstruction in Kosovo for 2000 pointing out political priorities in a framework of budgetary discipline. An indicative amount of 500 million euros to be provided by the EU budget for 2000 has been agreed by the European Parliament, the Council of Ministers and the EU.

To finance the 500 million euros the EU is essentially proposing three sources: redeployment of appropriations within the external action heading; use of appropriations from the flexibility reserve; revision of the financial perspective by redeployment to the external action heading. A specific budget line B7-700 is also foreseen to support for democracy for countries of Central and Eastern Europe and in the Balkans and in Republics formerly part of Yugoslavia.

The following priorities have been highlighted by the EC directly related to implementation of operations contributing to consolidation of pluralistic democratic procedures and practices as well as the rule of law, with a view to support the overall process of economic and political reform in the central and eastern European countries, ex Yugoslavia and the New independent States and Mongolia:

- acquisition of knowledge and techniques of parliamentary practice and organisation by multi-party groups of politicians (parliamentarians and elected representatives in local and regional government) and by parliamentary staff;
 - strengthening of NGOs which by their vocation and specific activities can make a continuing contribution to the promotion of a pluralistic democratic society;
 - transfer of specific expertise and technical skills about democratic practices and the rule of law to professional groups and associations in the countries concerned;
- There is provision within the budget line to support monitoring and follow up.

6.3 Policy Framework for South Eastern Europe Stability

6.3.1 Regional Approach

The cornerstones of the Regional Approach, as developed in 1996, aiming to reinforce the successful implementation of the Dayton/Paris and Erdut peace agreements as well as to create an area of political stability and economic prosperity.

The cornerstones of the approach were the promotion and maintenance of democracy, the rule of law, and respect for human and minority rights as well as the re-launching of economic activity.

In fact the five states of South-Eastern Europe (Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Albania) were divided into two different frameworks for the development of relations with the EU: i. the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Albania, which were not involved in the 1991-1995 war, have had more advance relations with the EU : ii. The other three countries were party to the Dayton/Paris peace agreements and consequently their compliance with these agreements was an important factor for the development of their relations with the EU.

6.3.2 Stabilisation and Association Agreements

In the light of the results achieved under the Regional Approach and taken into account the events in the region the EU has adopted a more far-reaching strategy in order to combine both the development of existing instruments as well as new initiatives aimed at an improvement of the situation.

A new essential instrument has adopted the Stability and Association Agreements (SAAs). That was a new kind of contractual relations with the five countries in order to draw the region closer to the perspective of full integration into EU structures.

The SAs are to be tailored-made to each country according to their specific circumstances.

Conditions for opening negotiations:

- ✓ Rule of law, democracy, compliance human/minority rights (incl. Media)
- ✓ Free/fair elections, full implementation results ;
- ✓ Absence of discriminatory treatment
- ✓ Implementation of the first steps economic reform(privatisation, abolition price controls)
- ✓ Proven co-operation/good neighbourly relations.
- ✓ Proven readiness for good neighbourly relations
- ✓ Dayton compliance (refugee return etc) for Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia, FYROM.
- ✓ Substantial progress in achievement of objectives of conditions for opening negotiations.
- ✓ Substantial results in field of political/economic reforms (stable economic environment, liberation prices, regulatory framework, competitive banking sector etc.)

6.3.3 Stability Pact for South Eastern Europe

The EU along with other partners has adopted a Stability Pact for South Eastern Europe in Cologne, Germany, the 10th June 1999.

The EU considers the Stability Pact to be a highly significant framework for achieving peace, stability and development in South Eastern Europe.

The launching of the Pact reflects the widespread recognition that the problems of the SEE region cannot be solved in a fragmented and isolated manner.

A genuinely comprehensive Regional Approach is necessary. Thus the pact has as pillars the respect of borders, good neighbourly relations and the promotion of multiethnic societies.

Essential element of the Stability Pact are bilateral and multilateral agreements on good neighbourly relations concluded by States in the region participating in the Pact.

To reach the objectives set by the Pact, a South Eastern Europe Regional Table has been set.

The South Eastern Europe Regional Table ensures co-ordination of activities of and between the following Working tables, which will build upon existing expertise, institutions and initiatives and are instruments for maintaining and improving good neighbourly relations in the region by constructively addressing and facilitating the resolution of the issues entrusted to them.

They are divided into sub-tables:

- a. Working Table on democratisation and human rights
- b. Working Table on economic reconstruction, development and co-operation

c. Working Table on security issues.

The Inaugural Meeting of the Economic Table under the Stability Pact took place in Bari on the 9th October 1999.

6.3.4 Stabilisation and Association Process

This is a substantial contribution, focused on the very same objectives as the Pact. This Process, which includes the creation of a new type of contractual relations, opens the prospect of EU membership to the countries of the region if and when they fulfil the necessary conditions.

The EU has underlined six significant areas of action for the immediate and near future: The development of existing economic and trade relations with and within the region as an important component for its strategy.

Existing trade relations with the region consist of a global autonomous trade regime based on preferences contained in the Co-operation Agreement with the former Yugoslavia. This applies to B-H, Croatia and (when it respects democracy and human rights) the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. The EU will propose specific country preferences. Country specific preferences are often on a contractual basis.

Existing assistance also indirectly covers trade custom assistance in B-H and Albania, technical assistance in the agricultural sector in Albania and Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, institution building in B-H.

The development of existing economic and financial assistance.

The EU will review again its financial instruments to adapt them if necessary to the needs of financing programmes of a regional dimension. For Kosovo, the EU has proposed the setting up of a European Reconstruction Agency for the implementation of its assistance. Pending adoption by Council and European Parliament, a EU Task Force is already working in Pristina.

An amount of 380 million euros has been proposed for further macro-financial assistance to several countries of the region; Community assistance will continue to be implemented to support the countries of the region in accordance with the objectives and principles agreed and will be in the form of technical assistance, investment aid and, where necessary, balance of payment assistance.

A part of the Community assistance will be destined for the financing of regional initiatives which can demonstrate a positive contribution to improving regional co-operation.

In close collaboration with the World Bank the EU will continue to mobilise, as necessary, donors funding, in line with the mandate which both institutions have received. To this respect the World Bank and the EU in consultation with the Bari Working Table are organising a regional Donors Conference in Vienna beginning of November. This conference is seeking for financial support from the private sector, major donors and international institutions for regional initiatives selected according to rigorous economic criteria.

Assistance for democratisation, civil society, education and institution-building.

The EU plans to review its Tempus Programme to provide further access to the countries of the region; it also envisages a network of civil society and democracy organisations;

The promotion of co-operation in various fields, including justice and home affairs.

An interim action plan on asylum and migration, covering Albania and the neighbouring region has been developed.

Political dialogue at regional level has been developed.

Political dialogue with Albania and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia takes place in the framework of Joint Declarations in parallel to the existing Co-operation Agreements.

Within the framework of the Stabilisation and Association process, a first informal political dialogue took place with Bosnia and Herzegovina and Croatia Development of a new kind of contractual relations- the so called Stabilisation and Association Agreements.

These Agreements open the prospect of future accession if and when the countries of the region fulfil the required conditions.

Negotiating directives have been proposed by the EU for Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and a relevant decision of the Council is expected soon. The EU is preparing a report along the same lines on the feasibility of opening negotiations for such an agreement with Albania.

6.3.5 Technical Assistance for Legal Harmonisation

The EU believes that an indispensable condition for stability and economic development is the building of efficient public administrations as well as reinforcing civil society.

New initiatives to provide Western Balkans with assistance in the field of legal harmonisation are justified by the new commitments which the EU has undertaken in the region, recognising the European vocation of these countries and giving them a perspective, although in the very long term, of full integration in the European structures, as well as the new form of contractual relations elaborated within the Stabilisation and Association Process.

The EU has a structure for assistance for legal harmonisation, the so called TAIEX office, which currently includes the pre-accession countries (including some of the Stability Pact countries, i.e. Bulgaria, Romania, Slovenia and Hungary); TAIEX covers all sectors of the Community acquis and organises its assistance at both the bilateral and multilateral levels.

6.3.6 Regional Environmental Projects

The Stability Pact for South Eastern Europe sets up the aim of regional projects and fostering friendly co-operation between neighbouring states. Environment is one area where regional co-operation can result in increased stability.

Numerous environmental activities are already going on in the region with a different degree of involvement of EU. Some of these activities will be expanded or reinforced to include or emphasise the areas of South Eastern Europe most seriously affected by the war.

A potential project that arose out of the informal meeting of environment ministers in Helsinki is the development of a Regional Environmental Reconstruction Plan that may aid in reconstruction and capacity building.

This would build on the experience of the countries in the region in producing their National Environmental Action Plans taking into account the current political circumstances and the need for enhanced co-operation in the region.

The EU examines the possibility of adapting; at least with regard to certain activities the present structures to the Western Balkans as well as Turkey. A cross- border programme is in its plans in order to pressure these countries to active co-operation.

6.3.7 Other Donors

Numerous donors and International Financing Institutions are active in Bosnia and Herzegovina as well as in Kosovo; Under the chairmanship of the World Bank and the EU, regular donor conferences are organised to ensure maximum impact of the international aid effort.

For B-H effective co-ordination is best organised at local level through the Economic Task Force and other more technical forums.

In addition, in order to ensure the greatest possible synergies between the EU's projects and those of the member states, the revised OBNOVA regulation requires for regular meetings between the EU and the representatives of the member states to consult, exchange information and co-ordinate activities.

For the reconstruction of Kosovo the EU and the World Bank have held their first international donors conference in Brussels in July, attended by around 100 countries and international organisations and $2.1 billion of aid was pledged to help to begin the task of rebuilding Kosovo.

The second Donors Conference was held at senior official level in Vienna in November 1999. At this meeting, representatives of the United Nations Mission in Kosovo updated participants on the overall situation in Kosovo. There was also a discussion on the economic policy framework and the priorities for reconstruction and recovery, in particular, the priority reconstruction and recovery programme produced jointly by the World Bank and the EU, in co-operation with United Nations Mission in Kosovo and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

The produced Report consists of five parts. The first chapter outlines the recovery strategy, sets overall goals and priorities, and provides an estimate of external funding requirements in each sector.

The three following chapters describe specific actions that should be undertaken to help Kosovars address the most critical challenges: restating the economy and support growth and employment, building the institutions that are needed for medium term stability and prosperity, and mitigating the effects of both the conflict and the 1990s policies. In the fifth chapter, the report discusses key issues for effective implementation.

The report is complemented by a series of sectional annexes, which include a more in depth analysis of each sector and its specific needs, and a list of actions for urgent support. A final annex identifies actions that require urgent funding, primarily to help Kosovars get through winter and to prepare next year's activities.

6.3.8 Programme Implementation

Since 1996, substantial funding has been allocated to Bosnia and Herzegovina through the Phare and Obnova programmes. Implementation rates have not always met the expectations of the beneficiaries or that of the European Parliament or the Court of Auditors. A number of reasons can be put forward to explain the constraints on project implementation for the 1996 and 1997 programmes:

The first relates to the local environment in which the programmes were to be implemented:
Limited absorption capacity for institutional related projects.
Lack of data or designs for infrastructure related projects.

Political tensions which result in slow decision making on the side of the beneficiary.
The absence of political agreement between the various entities, the lack of effective institutions able to approve the projects and the multiplicity of speakers surrounding divergent interests (opposition between the national level, the entity level and the local level) prevented in 1996 and 1997 a swift adoption of the basic documents and consequently delayed the effective implementation of the projects.

In addition, certain constraints have resulted from the administrative framework in which the EU services have had to work. The management of the programmes by the EU on behalf of the local authorities has been hampered by the existence of several budgetary lines and regulations (which were inadequate in the particular post war environment of Bosnia and Herzegovina) as well as staff limitations both in Brussels and in Sarajevo.

In 1998 and 1999, significant steps have been taken to improve the level of implementation:

Amendments brought to the OBNOVA regulation have simplified the decision making process for project approval and implementation.

The management of the programmes has been deconcentrated to the EU Representation in Sarajevo supported in its tasks by a Technical Assistance Unit and monitoring teams. A first assessment indicates that the deconcentration has already had an impact on the pace of programme implementation.

Regarding programmes implementation in Kosovo, it is considered relatively successful. A comprehensive set of procedures has been agreed, based on the OBNOVA model, but adapted to the particular circumstances of Kosovo.

6.4 EU Aid in the Context of International and Bilateral Action

EU programme development and implementation in Bosnia and Hertegovina and subsequently in Kosovo has been undertaken within the framework of policies and programmes implemented by international bodies, principally the Organisation For Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) and the Council for Europe, particularly in the fields of democratisation and human rights.

In Bosnia and Herzegovina OSCE's overriding responsibilities have included the political consultation process and conflict prevention and resolution. The latter has involved specific measures in election supervision, democratisation, assistance, human rights monitoring, arms control agreements and post conflict resolution. A key outcome has been the successful implementation of national and municipal elections in Bosnia.

The importance of the human dimension in operations of OSCE has increased steadily through the work of the Office of Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODHR) responsible for election monitoring, electoral reform, seminar sponsorship, freedom of movement and programmes in democratisation and value of law in Bosnia and the office of the High Commission for National Minorities working on behalf of ministries in the Balkans.

The OSCE diplomatic and humanitarian instruments provide a critical framework for the implementation of EU, other international donor programmes (World Bank, EBRD) and major bilateral donor.

At the level of EU-US co-ordination, the EU-US Action Plan identifies four principles for co-operation to ensure:

- i) Respect for human rights, the rights of minorities and rights of refugees and displaced persons, in particular the right of return.
- ii) Respect for the work of the War Crimes tribunal.
- iii) Establishment of a framework for free and fair elections.
- iv) Implementation of the agreed process for arms control, disarmament and confidence building measures.

In this context the task of reconstruction envisages the widest possible burden sharing with other clients, taking advantage of the experience of international institutions of the EU and its all relevant bilateral donors in the co-ordination mechanism.

The World Bank assessment that Bosnia requires a 5 billion multi annual commitment to rebuild the economy has received significant support through bilateral aid programmes in addition to World Bank and EU support.

The US has initiated a major bilateral aid programme ($760 million over several years) within this framework working extensively with central government and to provide for institutional building to enable future political stability and economic growth.

USAID assistance is helping to create a stable, democratise post-war Bosnia-Herzegovina with a functioning free market economy.

Other US support is being provided in the areas of demining, police training, national and municipal elections and the War Crimes Tribunal. In addition, the US Government has delivered over £1 billion in humanitarian assistance to the former Yugoslavia since 1991.

USAID/BIH activities are focused on four objectives:

- 1) Restoring private sector productive capacity to restart production quickly and create immediate self-sustaining employment.

USAID's Business Development Program is approving an average of $5 million in loans per month, creating an average of 5000 jobs per month.

- 2) Establishing a policy and institutional framework conducive to the emergence of a market economy, by supporting rapid privatisation, critical macroeconomic reforms, sound fiscal policies, and a viable banking system.

USAID advisors helped to establish the legislative framework for privatisation, while providing ongoing training for government officials, enterprise managers, and the media on the privatisation process. Additionally, USAID provided the hardware and software for the electronic claims registry and action system and is conducting direct public education campaigns using a variety of media.

- 3) Repairing war-damaged infrastructure to facilitate refugee return and reactivate the local economy.

USAID power projects have restored electricity to some 776,000 people, roughly 25 percent of Bosnia and Herzegovina's total population. In 1998, USAID infrastructure activities contributed to an estimated 80,000 refugee returns, including approximately one-third of the minority returns reported by the United Nations.

- 4) Strengthening democratic institutions that promote a multi-ethnic society and political pluralism by fostering an independent media, free and fair elections, a responsive and transparent government, citizen advocacy, and a professional independent judiciary.

USAID on-site training has helped television stations improve program quality, eliminate ethnic-based logos and programmes, make better business decisions and overcome equipment shortfalls.

The United Kingdom Government (DFID) has supported international initiatives and independent action in Bosnia, providing £1 billion of military and financial assistance over the last five years. The focus of the DFID bilateral assistance programme has moved from emergency to development assistance. This allows for new projects developed in response to the new DFID study for countries in transition – in Bosnia this particularly relates to conflict prevention. DFID endeavours to underpin the Dayton Peace Agreement by encouraging inter-ethnic co-operation wherever possible. Projects aim to address the causes of conflict through support for the independent media, reconciliation and refugee return, to help invigorate the economy through support for small and medium sized enterprises, regional development and enterprise restructuring. DFID is also offering substantial support to the new Government of Republika Srpska recognition of its commitment to the Dayton Peace Agreement.

Major DFID projects include;

- ✓ Retain and reconcile programme; encouraging the return of refugees and displaced persons to integrated communities.
- ✓ School of Broadcast journalism
- ✓ Development of small and medium sized enterprise sector

- ✓ Electricity transmission/supply rehabilitation
- ✓ Know How to the World Bank Essential Hospital Services project
- ✓ Procurement advisor to support implementation of World Bank Reconstruction Assistance programme to Republica Srpska

In respect of Kosovo, DFID since March 99 have committed £90 million of humanitarian and rehabilitation assistance including £50 million committed since the June 15th peace agreement. Priority areas are:

- ✓ Support for the UN
- ✓ Demining activity
- ✓ Support for health services
- ✓ Assistance in independent media
- ✓ Rebuilding civil society
- ✓ Re-establishing infrastructure

The work to be administered through a DFID office in Pristina.

PART SEVEN

Guidelines for Future JICA Action

Set out below are guidelines for future JICA action in respect of:

- ✓ Democratisation/Human Rights/Good Guidance in Africa and the Middle East.
- ✓ Conflict Prevention, Resolution and Peace-keeping.
- ✓ Stability in South East Europe

7.1 Democratisation/Human Rights/Good Governance

7.1.1 Africa

This theme has highlighted that in respect of democratic/human rights and good government in Africa individual country assistance programmes have been developed within the context of clearly defined partnerships at the global, multi national and individual country levels.

The development of JICA action needs to consider how it can position itself to strengthen multi agency partnerships and its own programmes specifically:

- ✓ The nature of its relationship with the United Nations office for the High Commission for Human Rights – how can JICA’s relationship with this body in respect of its overall and African programmes be strengthened – could potentially involve the preparation of a formal strategy partnership paper?
- ✓ Monitoring and diplomatic/technical liaison in relation to EU-American joint action planning in respect of Human rights/democracy action in Africa – defining the basis for complementary or strengthening action by JICA in respect of particular activities undertaken through this plan.
- ✓ Liaison with the EU on political dialogue priorities being developed within the LOME amended convention – setting the agenda and the basis for EU and individual country partnerships. Defining the potential for JICA’s own independent or supporting action in relation to the EU programmes at the individual country level.
- ✓ JICA to set out a clear strategy and mechanism for the future development of its relationship with the UN, EU and US in relation to this theme in Africa which builds its own partnership approach at the global, multi national and country level with initiatives which strengthen institutional and programme capability relevant to each level.

7.1.2 Middle East

JICA in considering measures to assist democratisation and human rights in the Middle East will need to develop a response which can strengthen key strategic objectives of international agencies and joint bilateral action and provide distinct complementary initiatives at the individual country level.

This could specifically involve the following:

- ✓ A review of the partnership with OHCHR to support programme delivery through technical co-operation and field operatives in this area as part of an overall strategic planning reappraisal.
- ✓ Liaison mechanisms established between JICA and EU officials managing the EU MEDA Programme and US Agency for International Development (AID) to determine the basis for existing regional and country based indicative programmes and priorities for future development. As a result identify potential strengthening and complementary project measures that could be implemented by JICA.
- ✓ Review of major bilateral assistance programmes (i.e. DFID) which place democracy/human rights measures as a fundamental priority assessing the basis for themes and programmes developed at the strategic (i.e. international agency) and individual country level to determine the political scope for JICA bilateral involvement in conjunction with international agencies.

7.2 Conflict Prevention, Resolution, Peace-keeping

7.2.1 Africa

The increasing profile of conflict resolution/prevention in African assistance policies and programmes in respect of EU renegotiations of the Lome convention and in major bilateral initiatives (i.e. the United Kingdom : DFID) provides a particular challenge for JICA.

- ✓ JICA in its developing policy and programme framework should assess how it can collaborate with the clear strategy being adopted by the EU in respect of strengthening partnership with the OAU and with sub-regional organisations.
- ✓ JICA in evaluating sub-regional or individual country action should assess the basis for conflict resolution as integrated in the individual country agreements, and determine the nature of JICA involvement in respect of individual programme or policy initiatives which could strengthen the co-ordination of internal bodies as well as providing complementary action.

7.2.2 Middle East

The EU is setting out a clear policy and programme commitment for ensuring conflict prevention/resolution and peace building in the Middle East region and with individual countries throughout European-Mediterranean Partnerships.

JICA has the potential to respond at two levels:

- ✓ Current policy content, consider the implications of European-Mediterranean Charter for Peace and Stability for conflict prevention in respect of wider international initiatives (EU/US joint action) or international bodies (United Nations) – how should JICA input into this policy development process to strengthen current priorities.
- ✓ European-Mediterranean Partnership; JICA to consider the basis of conflict prevention/peace keeping measures set out in individual Country Association agreements and define how its programme or project initiatives can be co-ordinated and strengthen such action.

7.3 Stability in South Eastern Europe

The European Commission has been instrumental in creating a regional approach to the consideration of support to provide for the stabilisation of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Kosovo and Albania, Macedonia, Croatia and Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. The approach has been undertaken in close collaboration with the World Bank, EBRD and other major donors.

JICA is considering its response to what is now a clearly defined strategy and programme approach needs to develop its approach at a number of levels.

- ✓ Strategic ; diplomatic liaison/senior officials reviewing the implications of the proposals of the International Management Group in respect of reconstruction programmes and projects for future JICA programmes.
- ✓ Liaison with the EU and Bosnia on the scope for JICA to strengthen the initiatives set out for the stabilisation and association agreement ; basis for strengthening or complementary action.
- ✓ Liaison with the EU Task Force in Kosovo on the programming and implementation of the EU reconstruction programme and small scale opportunities programme to assess the nature of programme and project priorities and the potential for JICA technical support to complement and strengthen key areas of assistance.

In the context of the above Bosnia and Kosovo represent areas where existing international co-operation and co-ordination in respect of security, democratic, humanitarian and technical support is clearly defined and programmes are being formulated and implemented. The potential for JICA is to liaise on the scope for its actions to play a prominent role in supporting the internationally agreed priorities and their implementation through particular project initiatives.
